FUCHSIA UNCLEAR

Mental health hospital ward threatened with closure

A hospital ward caring for elderly patients with mental health problems could close after a public consultation.

Relatives of patients at Fuchsias ward in Tolworth Hospital have reacted angrily to news that their loved ones could be moved elsewhere,

by NAZIA DEWJI

ndewji@london.newsquest.co.uk announced at a health scrutiny meeting on Wednesday, December 19.

All six residents at Fuchsias ward suffer from the latter stages of dementia with some of the residents having been at the ward for nearly 20 years.

Mark Dinwiddy from St George's and South West London Mental Health Trust said: "We are not in a position to provide end of life care that people need. We do not have access to emergency care. We do not have the training.

"The £120,000 per person is not sustainable in the current financial climate."

Louise Tarleton-Hodgson, whose father has been a patient at the ward since 2004, said she was shown accounts of the ward and told the trust would need to make a 70 per cent cut in costs in order to keep it open.

Councillor David Fraser said: "There has been research done in moving sick patients – it will shorten their lives."

Councillor Neil Houston

said: "We all believed it was staying open."

Reasons for the proposed closure by the trust included lack of access to emergency care and financial difficulties.

The public consultation into the future of Fuchsias ward is set to begin in February 2013.

CADET AWARDS: Police cadets gathered for their annual awards ceremony this month. More than 20 awards were given out by borough commander Martin Greenslade at the Territorial Army headquarters in Portsmouth Road, Kingston. This year 80 cadets donated more than 2,255 hours to help police the community during events such as the Olympics. Kingston cadets meet on a Wednesday or Thursday.

DARK SIDE: Half of the lights at Kingston Bridge were off at dusk on some days earlier this month. The Richmond side of the bridge remained alight while the Kingston side stood dark. Kingston Council said the electronic timer device for the bridge was faulty and had now been replaced by its street lighting contractor.

ROAD HELL: Motorists endured misery with traffic backed up along the A3 on two days last week. Scaffolding fell on a vehicle blocking the A3 near New Malden on Monday, while on Tuesday a slip road was closed due to a burst water main.

No-nonsense councillor loses battle with illness

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

A popular Kingston councillor has died following a long battle with cancer.

Liberal Democrat Frances Moseley died last Wednesday, at the Princess Alice Hospice in Esher, aged 67.

This week council colleagues from the ruling Lib Dems and opposition Conservatives paid tribute to the Berrylands representative, who was known for her strong and forthright views.

Council leader Councillor Derek Osbourne described Coun Moseley as a "remarkable, no-nonsense woman", who never let her illness get in the way of her council work.

He said: "I spoke to her a couple of months ago and she said she wanted to stay as long as she could working for her residents.

"Even from the hospice she was authorising councillors' questions and so on, and that was just last week."

At the time of her death,

Coun Moseley was serving as lead member for better homes, co-chairwoman of the place and sustainability committee and vice chairwoman of the development control committee.

Coun Osbourne said: "She really did show tremendous courage and commitment, particularly to tenants and poor people in the borough.

"I have been in the council since 1986 and I think she has been one of the most successful housing leads I can remember.

"What she thought she said and I think people liked that."

Conservative leader Councillor Howard Jones said: "She was very well respected by the opposition.

"She did her best for the community.

"Over the past months she bore her illness with fortitude and bravery, which was the mark of the woman."

Born in Essex in 1945, Coun Moseley studied at Newcastle University and took a post graduate degree in business and German.

Conversant in six languages, she worked as an IT consultant until 2002, when she became a secondary school language teacher.

She was elected to the Berrylands ward in 2006, quickly becoming a senior and trusted part of the Kingston Lib Dems.

Her son Charles said: "For me, she has been one of the most straight-talking and brightest people I have come across.

"She was incredibly knowledgeable, did not suffer fools or people who did not have a clue what they were talking about."

Kingston and Surbiton MP Edward Davey said: "She was an amazing woman and one of the best councillors I have ever known."

Committed: Frances Moseley carried out her duties from her hospital bed, right up until last week

Review into police actions in wake of hammer murder

by TOM BARNES

tbarnes@london.newsquest.co.uk

An independent review has been launched into the actions of police and other agencies after a mother was hammered to death by her jealous boyfriend.

Asad Niazi was jailed for life last Thursday at the Old Bailey for murdering Charito "Che" Cruz, the mother of his two-year-old daughter, at their Cambridge Road home shortly after being released by police after a night in the cells for smashing her mobile phone.

During his trial it was revealed that Ms Cruz, a 37-year-old Filipino care home worker, had contacted the One Stop domestic violence centre and made an appointment.

She was hammered to death by Niazi on September 26, 2011, before she could attend.

Ms Cruz's friend Maravic Ayala wept in court as she recalled how she begged her friend not to return home after Niazi had been released from a night in the cells for smashing up her mobile phone.

She said: "I'm begging her to stay at my place because I am really worried about their safety from Asad because she thought Asad was still in jail.

"She was crying and the last words she told me [were] 'If you [can] no longer contact me, maybe Asad [has] killed me already'. She was really scared."

He had also handed himself in to Kingston police station in 2010, telling officers he had overstayed his visa in the UK.

He was told to report to immigration, which he never did.

The murder was handed to the Independent Police Complaints Commission, which asked the Metropolitan Police to investigate.

A Kingston Council spokesman said: "An independent domestic homicide review, overseen by an independent chairman, is ongoing and council departments and other agencies are contributing to it.

"We cannot comment further while the review is in progress."

Police blame foxes for cat attacks

A fox may have been decapitating cats across Kingston and leaving their remains for their distraught owners, a police investigation has found.

Several cats have been found with missing body parts, including their heads and tails over the past few months, prompting the police investigation.

Kingston wildlife police officer Hayley Parkes said: "It is the view of the RSPCA that the damage has most probably been caused by foxes attacking the cats.

"It is accepted that foxes can kill for sport and this – given no indication to the contrary – seems to be what has happened in these instances.

"We felt, however, that it was important we reviewed the limited information thoroughly.

"They were someone's prized companions and did not deserve the fate that was visited upon them."

Miss Parkes added that if new information came to light the cases would be re-opened and urged pet owners to come forward if their animal was the victim of a similar attack.

But Karen Burgess, whose two cats were found decapitated in Iris Close, Sutton,

by TOM BARNES

tbarnes@london.newsquest.co.uk

said she found it "very hard to believe" it was foxes as her vet had told her the injuries suggested body parts were cut off by someone using a knife.

Mrs Burgess said: "I have to say this is a big surprise to me because from what my vet told me at the time it was very unlikely it was done by another animal.

"We have foxes in the garden and know they cut chickens' heads off, but I have been told by vets that foxes rarely attack dogs and cats for fear of being injured and not being able to defend themselves.

"I would like to know what evidence the police have that would suggest it was done by foxes and not by a human."

Nurses at Aspen Veterinary, Surbiton, who inspected the body of Leila Frame's cat, Alex, which had its head and tail cut off in October, told head vet Peter Melville they believed the cut was "far too clean" along the neck and tail to have been done by another animal.

Christmas care for the lonely cats and dogs

by JAMIE HENDERSON

jhenderson@london.newsquest.co.uk

While most homes prepare for Christmas by putting up a tree, wrapping presents and buying a turkey, Battersea Dogs and Cats Home has to take an entirely different approach.

Its Christmas shopping list this year involved sourcing 801 poo bags, 277 litres of cat litter and 150 knitted mice – all sown by one kind-hearted woman.

Despite already housing 450 dogs and 150 cats, last year, between December 24 and January 1, an astounding 96 dogs and 52 cats were brought through the charity's doors.

While many were strays, the large majority were brought in because their owners simply did not have the time, or money, to keep them.

One distressing example last

Christmas came with Cedric the bulldog, who was heartlessly left tied to a lamppost in the freezing cold.

But, thanks to the army of staff and volunteers who unselfishly gave up their time on Christmas Day, the 600 animals currently living at the home will be given a whole host of festive treats.

Carlton Spears, Battersea's operations manager, said: "Our dogs don't have families to give them leftover turkey, and the cats won't get to play with anyone's Christmas wrapping paper."

"Ultimately, we want them to find a new home."

"But until then we have to make our kennels and cattery as enjoyable as possible."

"So we're hoping they enjoy this taste of Christmas."

All the goodies will be handed out by staff and volunteers, who will spend hours ensuring all the dogs enjoy a Christmas walk and the cats receive plenty of fuss.

And, once exhausted by the games, the cats can settle for a Christmas afternoon snooze in their heated cat beds.

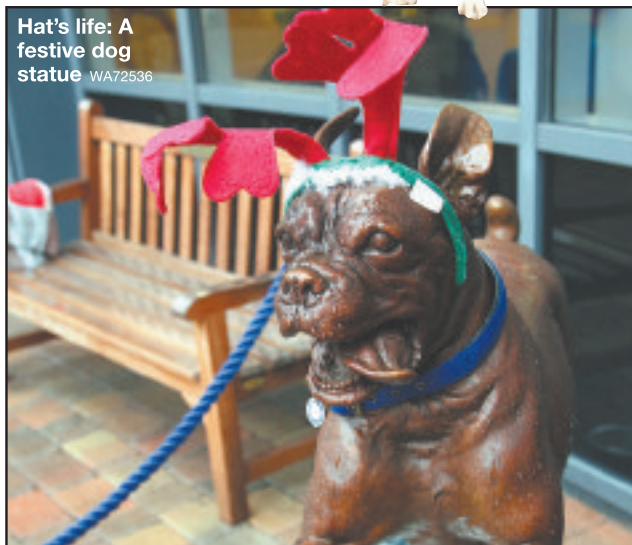

Christmas carols and classical music will also be played and frankincense and nutmeg will be sprayed in the kennels.

And to make this year extra special, the public are being urged to help by donating online (by visiting battersea.org.uk) so each animal can get its own present and turkey-flavoured Christmas dinner.

The home is asking people who are interested in fostering a dog or a cat on a temporary basis to get in touch.

For more information visit battersea.org.uk/dogs/fostering.

To donate a Christmas lunch or present to a dog or cat, visit battersea.org.uk/christmas where for £5 you can make their day extra special.

Thinking of making a resolution, but scared you might not be able to keep it? SOPHIA SLEIGH gets some tips from the experts on sticking to goals

New you in 2013

It is that time of year again when millions of us make promises to improve our lives, but we know deep down we are doomed to fail. Sitting in the armchair in a food-induced haze we dream of a new year in which we achieve that Kelly Brook or Ryan Gosling body and no longer wheeze when we get to the top of the stairs. Some people make the same resolutions each year including losing weight, stopping smoking and getting fit. However, in reality most of us fall off the wagon within days of making our new year's resolutions – the pounds pile back on and we can't resist that little cigarette. However, after hosting the greatest sports spectacle on earth, perhaps 2013 should be the year Londoners take a little inspiration from the hundreds of determined athletes. A hypnotherapist and a doctor say it's possible and with a little mind over matter we can all stick to our new year's resolutions.

Hope: John Mill helps you believe you can

Hypnotherapy helps

John Mill is a Harley Street hypnotherapist from Sutton who helps people deal with problems ranging from smoking to nail-biting and weight management. In the new year he often has clients come to him wanting to stop smoking and lose weight. John gets people to stick to their new year's resolutions by changing the way they think about the promises they make to themselves. He teaches them about the size of their stomach and even leaves a McDonald's Happy Meal on a chair in an experiment to show it has so many preservatives a month later it will not have rotted. He said: "With weight and smoking a lot of people don't imagine doing it. "You have to take away the words 'try' and 'hope'. If you believe you can do it – you can. "I don't put them on a diet but I get them to choose what's healthy."

Doctor's opinion about smoking

Dr Ruth Charlton, Epsom and St Helier Trust's joint medical director, urges people who make a new year's resolution to quit smoking. She said quitting smoking not only improves your own health but that of those around you, and it's even good for your wallet. She said: "Over the course of 10 years, a person smoking 20 cigarettes a day will see something in the region of £25,000 go up in smoke, quite literally."

Our pick of THE PANTOS

Wandsworth

A Bollywood version of Dick Whittington is bringing a hint of spice to the pantomime season this winter.

The traditional Christmas play has been rewritten by Bend It Like Beckham actress Harvey Virdi, following on from the success of Bollywood Cinderella last year.

Dick Whittington Goes Bollywood features poor Dick who sets off on a journey, armed only with a handkerchief of goods and his cat for company.

Virdi is best known for her roles in Bend It Like Beckham, Brick Lane and Britz.

● Dick Whittington Goes Bollywood; Tara Arts Theatre, Garratt Lane, Earlsfield; until January 5, doors 7.30pm; £12.50; tara-arts.com, 020 8333 4457.

DICK WHITTINGTON

Kingston

Cinderella the Midnight Princess featuring a twist on the much-loved children's fairy tale is showing at the Rose Theatre.

In a dark take on Charles Perrault's original tale of love, family and compassion set in a European court in the 1700s the story follows Cinderella as she struggles to come to terms with the death of her mother with her estranged sick father until she sets eyes on her prince charming.

But can Cinders get past her ugly sisters and try on her glass slipper in time to live happily ever after?

● Cinderella the Midnight Princess; The Rose, 24-26 High Street, Kingston; until January 6; £15-£28 and pit cushions £8; call 08444 821556 or visit rose theatrefreekingston.org.

CINDERELLA

Croydon

Jack and the Beanstalk will be brought to the stage at Croydon's Fairfield Halls this Christmas.

Neil Fingleton, the UK's tallest man at 7ft 7in, is every bit the giant in the popular children's tale.

Laila Morse, best known as Mo Harris from East Enders, will be playing the Fairy while Quinn Patrick returns with a wardrobe of fantastic costumes as the outrageous Dame Trott.

Jay Worthy plays the Giant's evil henchman and Herbie Adams is Jack's comedic brother and CBeebies' Sid Sloane is Jack.

● Jack and the Beanstalk; Fairfield Halls Concert Hall, Park Lane, Croydon; until January 6; adults £27.50 to £19.50, children £23.50 to £19.50; call 020 8688 9291 or visit fairfield.co.uk.

JACK AND THE BEANSTALK

Epsom

Snow White and her Seven Dwarfs will be entertaining pantomime lovers at the Epsom Playhouse this Christmas.

This year's production features Channel 4 presenter Bryn Lucas as the prince and local girl Charlotte Steen in the title role. Steen, a student at Laine Theatre Arts in Epsom, is an up-and-coming actress.

She says: "I'm so excited to be playing the part of Snow White in the town where I live and where I did my training. It will be lovely to be working here.

"I love being able to help spread Christmas cheer."

● Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs; Epsom Playhouse, Ashley Avenue; until January 6, times vary, £9.50; call 01372 742555, visit epsomplayhouse.co.uk.

SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN DWARFS

Sutton

Peter Pan will take to the stage in Sutton in the Carshalton Pantomime Company's 49th production.

Join TinkerBell, Captain Hook, Bosun Smee, the Lost Boys, Wendy, John and Michael on a magical adventure in Neverland. Promising truly magical flying effects and a large cast, Peter Pan is a show not to be missed.

The Carshalton Pantomime Company has developed a reputation for presenting traditional-style pantomimes with a modern slant and their performances also raise funds for local children's charities.

● Peter Pan; Seacombe Theatre, 42 Cheam Road, Sutton; January 11 to 26, 7.30pm plus Saturday 2.30pm matinee and Sunday 2pm matinee - No shows on Monday; £11 to £13; suttontheatres.co.uk; 020 8770 6990.

Richmond

This year's pantomime is an explosion of sparkle and cheesy jokes at Richmond Theatre in a great family feast of entertainment.

Aladdin boasts a host of stars, including Richmond favourite Tim Vine as Wishee Washee and Hear'say star and West End queen, Suzanne Shaw as the Genie.

Vine says: "Richmond Theatre is perfect for pantomime and my nieces are at an age now where it's still cool for them to come see their uncle do one, whereas in a few years time they'll think it's deeply uncool."

"It helps that I've got quite short jokes, so I don't have to do big bits of set up and can chuck them in throughout the performance. It's nice to be able to them en route, because it makes more sense for the story as a whole."

The show takes all the family on a spectacular journey to the mystical world of the Far East with stunning sets, glittering costumes, wonderful songs and dazzling dancing.

● Aladdin; Richmond

Theatre, The Green, Richmond; until January 13; £10 to £29.50, family tickets start at £14.50 per ticket; call 0844 8717651 or visit atg tickets.com/richmond.

ALADDIN

Wimbledon

In Wimbledon Priscilla Presley will be making her panto debut starring as the Wicked Witch in Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs.

The first lady of rock-'n'-roll will be joined by film and TV star Warwick Davis who will be taking on the role of chief dwarf Doc.

The actor is best known for his performances in Willow, Star Wars, Harry Potter and more recently appearing with Karl Pilkington in the new series of An Idiot Abroad.

Comedian Jarrod Christmas, who has appeared in Mock the Week and 8 out of 10 Cats, will be starring as Herman the Henchman.

● Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs; New Wimbledon Theatre until January 13; 7pm; £10 to £29.50; atg tickets.com/wimbledon; 0844 8717646.
